Carla Gomez is overbearing, uncooperative, and on the last nerve of basically everyone at her daughter's wedding—so when she goes missing, leaving behind only a poorly-spelled ransom note (or possibly an order for takeout; it's hard to tell), everyone is a suspect.

It's up to substitute bridesmaid and kind-of, sort-of detective Francine "Francy" Droo (and her awkward friend Katie) to figure out whodunit, before the wedding bells can ring. Was it the groom? The priest? The butler? (There is no butler, but still...)

Solve challenging puzzles! Question suspects! Make your accusation, and find the missing mom. There's a mystery to solve!

From the developers of My Nigerian Prince comes a new visual novelette that's part parody, part mystery, and all sassery.

Features

- BEND THE UNIVERSE TO YOUR WILL. If you can prove they did it, they probably did!
- Full-motion video! Voice acting! Logic puzzles!
- Story by popular YouTuber (and sassy teen detective) Michael "arglefumph" Gray.
- Six possible endings! (That's 25 cents per ending.)
- The perfect Mothers' Day gift that says "Mom, I'm glad nobody's kidnapped you."

About Oh, a Rock! Studios

Oh, a Rock! Studios is an indie game-development studio/loosely connected group of friends that makes funny, weird, sincere adventure games and visual novelettes. It was founded in 2014 by award-winning beard enthusiast Paul Franzen, who also served as lead writer/designer on Moment Games' point-and-clicker Life in the Dorms. Our first title was My Nigerian Prince, a short, romantic game about spam e-mail which debuted late last year. For more information, check out <http://www.oharock.com>.
